

Dr. Rawan Alshehri

Rawan is a dedicated and passionate young physician specialized in emergency medicine. With exceptional academic achievements and problem-solving skills, she thrives in the fast-paced environment of emergency care. During her residency, she discovered the fascinating field of point of care ultrasonography (POCUS) and decided to pursue a fellowship to further her expertise in this area. She is already excelling in our program and after only two short months in training, has obtained her C-PoCUS IP certification and is instructing our RC EM and ESEM residents in their PoCUS clinical blocks. Dr. Alshehri understands the importance of self-care and maintaining a healthy work-life balance to sustain her passion. Outside of medicine, she enjoys outdoor activities like swimming and hiking, which help her maintain a well-rounded life and reinforce her dedication to emergency medicine.
